In the wake of a recent wave of mergers and acquisitions, the retail sector is set for a period of consolidation. The focus on reducing costs and improving efficiency has driven the industry towards a more focused and specialized approach.

Supermarkets are now setting up bases in the country, and the trend is likely to continue. However, the challenge lies in creating a competitive edge.

With the rise of e-commerce, traditional retail stores are facing increased competition. The key to success lies in innovation and agility.

The retail sector is expected to grow at a steady pace, driven by consumer demand and technological advancements. The future looks promising, but only those who adapt quickly will succeed.
